

ABSTRACT

An information recording medium from which data can be read stably even when a label for the information recording medium is adhered thereon is provided. A label is partially attached to an information
5 recording member in which an information recording layer is formed on a substrate.